

COOKIE POLICY

This website uses cookies.

A cookie is a small amount of data generated by a website and saved by your web browser. Its purpose is to remember information about you to be used for your next visit. While you browse the net, cookies may be installed on your device sent by websites or web servers different to those of the owner of the website you are visiting (“third parties’ cookie”). Cookies are assigned to users individually and can only be read by the web server of the domain that sent them. They may be used for different purposes such as, for example, the authentication of information, monitoring sessions or memorizing information about specific configurations related to users that access the server. They cannot be used to run programs or download viruses on to the user’s computer nor are they designed to automatically collect data from the user’s hard disk and illegally transfer the user’s personal data or the content of their system to third parties.

Cookies can be either “technical” or “profiling”.

- Technical cookies: these are installed on the user’s browser to allow the correct functioning of websites, to identify the user when they log in, to analyse their browsing history so as to optimise it regularly and perform analyses to improve the presentation, functioning and security of websites. Specifically, technical cookies can be session cookies that guarantee the normal browsing and utilisation of the website, or persistent cookies, such as analytics cookies used to collect aggregated data on the number of users that visit a website and how they interact with it or how the website functions to allow the user to browse using a number of selected criteria, including, for example, the language. The users’ prior consent is not necessary to install these cookies.
- Profiling cookies: these are designed to create user profiles and are used to send advertising messages (banners) that match the user’s preferences shown when browsing. Therefore, the law requires that the user has to give their valid consent before these cookies can be installed. The profiling cookies can be used for remarketing/retargeting purposes, for example, to present the website owner’s adverts on other websites based on the user’s utilisation of such websites. The websites can also use pixel tags and web beacons, i.e., images included in the websites to measure and analyse their use, as well as third party multimedia widgets/plugin-ins to allow the use of social networking sites and to share the content of visited sites with the related accounts. These interactive programs collect the users’ IP address, the visited page of the website and design the cookies to allow the correct functioning of the widgets/plugin-ins. The users’ interactions with these widgets/plugin-ins are regulated by the privacy policy of the third parties that supply them.
